KNOW YOUR COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT WORKERS IN MPUMALANGA

Mpumalanga Provincial
House of Traditional Leaders

“Know Your Community Development Worker”

This publication “Know Your CDW” is an initiative by the Department of Co-operative Governance and Traditional Affairs to profile the Community Development Workers Programme in Mpumalanga Province (CDWP).

The CDWP which began in 2003 requires participants to work across different levels of government to help people to access government services available to them. In his 2003 State of the Nation address, former President Thabo Mbeki presented the rationale for the CDWP, carrying forward the government’s stated intention to address the economic and social marginalization of the majority of South Africans when he said: “Government will create a public service echelon of multi- skilled Community Development Workers who will maintain direct contact with people where these masses live.

We are determined to ensure that government goes to the people so that we sharply improve the quality of the outcomes of public expenditure intended to raise the standards of living of our people. It is wrong that government should oblige people to come to government even in circumstances in which people do not know what services the government offers and have no means for transport to reach government offices.”

- CDWs are expected to know about services provided by various departments at different levels of government. It is essential that all levels of government cooperate to give citizens a complete package of services that will improve their conditions.
- CDWs are change agents who work in the communities where they live.
- They are a key part of improving service delivery throughout South Africa.
- They give community members information and help to empower individuals and communities.
- CDWs give information to the most disadvantaged and economically vulnerable so that they can rapidly access programmes designed for their benefit.
- The work of CDWs cuts across structures and government institutions.
- CDWs are important channel for government to get information directly to the people and from the people.
- They assist in determining the needs of communities and communicate these needs to the relevant Government structures.
- They identify service delivery blockages and develop solutions to address these blockages.
- They keep the community up to date with regard to all services rendered by Government.
- They inform and assist communities to have access to services.
- They facilitate and promote the participation of communities in Government development programmes and projects.
- They assist communities in awareness and advocacy work.
- They encourage communities to engage in job creation opportunities.
